Spring hath sprung!

—Cindy Harp

There is no denying it certainly looks like spring is here! The weather has been exceptional and the trees and wildflowers are all popping with new buds and flowers. Along with the beauty that we see everywhere comes that inexorable rising of spirits as we sense newness and rebirth happening all around us.

For me, this means it is time to start turning over the earth in my garden and planting early crops like peas and spinach. In some ways, this is an effort in frustration. Each year in April I think it is time to plant, only to have a cold spell or even snow come through in May! Some years I have had to plant three times before it was really the "right" time! Still, "hope springs eternal" and I am called to plant the future harvest.

In the same way, AAUW Mariposa

Branch is called to plant the seeds of inspiration that will become our programs and projects for the next fiscal year of AAUW. True, some of those ideas won't live to see their fruition, but with each new planning session, fresh ideas are offered up to join the "perennials" of our organization's mission. Perhaps you have an idea for a new Special Interest Group you would like to start, or a series of informational programs for the community. Maybe you are just called to participate in a new way.

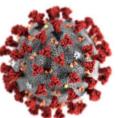

You are the garden, the gardener, and the harvest, and you are invited to join your leadership board in envisioning the future of the organization. There will be an invitation to our June annual meeting soon, which we all would love to see happen face-to-face. But whether in person or by

Regular testing helps county to keep track

Happy spring members! What is new with COVID in our county this month? Vaccinations are ongoing and if you have not received a shot yet, yes you can get one.

Click here for the county health department sign-up page.

Click here for the link for the state sign-up page.

Our county's trigger to go from the Orange to the Yellow tier is two cases or less per week along with a positive test percentage of 2% or less. While we currently have markedly fewer cases than we had in January and February, we are still getting positive cases here. With tourists coming back to town and people having traveled for Easter and spring breaks, there is an increased risk of exposures.

Although the vaccine is very effective, it is not 100%. And we know that although vaccinated people are far less likely to transmit disease, it is still possible.

Because of the possibility of asymptomatic cases, whether vaccinated or not, we still need to have people get tested on a recurring basis. This allows the county to better estimate what the prevalence of the disease in the community might be. If only sick people get tested this gives a poor representation of what is actually happening.

Please continue to get your COVID testing done. If you have recently returned from travel, get tested about 4 to 5 days after your return. If you have frequent contact with visitors, consider getting tested every two weeks, even if you are vaccinated. Consider the same schedule if you are not vaccinated, even if you don't have contact with a large number of people. And if you are fully vaccinated, get tested about once a month.

2021 applicants' scores so close—judges decide to send them all!

—Trish Darcy

Tech Trek is moving along quickly! March was a busy month. We had 11 girls who had turned in their applications by the end of February and were very excited about the participation despite the pandemic! The application scorers went to work and did an excellent job of getting the data back to me in a timely manner. Thank you to Peggy Shainberg, Dawn Johnson, Sandi Gabe, Rick Uebner, and Phyllis Weber.

Of the 11 applicants, eight were chosen for an interview. The interview team of Judy Eppler, Becky Mock and Barbara Silva (who filled in at the last minute for us! Thank you!) were on Zoom with me on the morning of Saturday, March 20th. We had some time beforehand to discuss how we world work things out and had to reword one of the questions so that it fit with a virtual camp as opposed to an in-person camp. We were ready to go when the first girl popped up in the waiting room at 10:00. Thank goodness we had very little technical difficulties; just a minor issue with one girl's sound, but we were all patient and worked through it.

Little did we know that at the end of the day, the scores would be so close! I have never seen scores so bunched up together! This showed us that we had selected the cream of the crop to interview and that we really needed to look into selecting all eight of them instead of the five we were planning on selecting. We all agreed that they each had qualities that would make them perfect candidates for Tech Trek and were having a hard time leaving out three of the girls who interviewed since their scores were all within only four points of the five girls we selected (and this is out of around 300 total points)! So you can imagine the difficulty of our decision.

At that point we decided to look into what it would take to send all eight instead of just five. I contacted the board members who all agreed to send them all if we were allowed (how could they not!?) We had budgeted $900/girl hoping for an in-person camp, but since the camp has to be virtual, the cost is only $400/ girl, so we had the money in the budget. I then contacted the camp director, who very quickly got back to me, and gave us the go-ahead to send the three extra girls this year! Woo hoo! We will be sending a total of 13 girls because our five from last year will all be attending along with the eight we selected this year! Mariposa will be well represented! The girls selected last year are: Annie Bryant, Emberly Witt, Tiffany Hyde, Cassie Luffy, and Hope Hespenheide. The girls we selected this year are: Emily Ramsey, Celina Heard, Alissa Anderson-Decker, Sadie Belcher, Kelsea Coder, Acelia Tilton, Juniper Helling and Marley Gediman. Congratulations to all!

Spotlight on Reva Colliver

After Reva Colliver was born in

-Kim Monson

Puget Sound Washington, her family moved to a farm (horses, cows, pigs, the whole thing) in the general Seattle area where they lived until she was seven years old. The family then sold everything and moved to Glendale, California. After graduating from Glendale High School, Reva attended Fullerton Junior College and transferred to San Francisco State where she earned a BA in education. She intended to teach elementary school, but you know how men get in the way? While in school, Reva was working summers in Yosemite, and that is where she met Gary Colliver. They married in 1965 and lived in a little San Francisco apartment for $65 per month. Talk about

After Gary finished his BS in Biology and Ecology, Reva and Gary lived a gypsy life and loved it. Gary worked at several national parks as a mountain climbing guide, and Reva was part of the crew, cooking for the mountaineers. They worked at Donner Summit, Banff Canada, Wyoming, and Mount McKinley. In between mountain climbing gigs, they lived in Sacramento and Berkeley. They were even in Berkeley during the 1969 anti-war protests, and when the tear gas flew, Gary decided they should go live in Canada for a while. He even studied lobsters at the University of Calgary. Eventually Reva said she needed to go back to California.

In the early 1970's Gary got a job working as a lab assistant at Stanford. They adopted baby boy Matthew in 1974, which meant that settling down was looking good. That is when Gary and Reva moved to Mariposa where they bought her parents' 5-acre place on Tip Top Road. Eventually they sold that and moved to El Portal where they lived for 25 years and built Reva's dream house. Gary was once again working as a climbing guide, while Reva worked in the Yosemite shops and at the Ahwahnee Hotel, where she could get off work in time to care for Matthew when he got out of school. It was also during this time that Reva drove to Merced College one night a week to take art classes.

Reva also took art classes at Fresno City College when Gary worked for the Forest Service on endangered species for a short two years. Reva's art has been in several Art Shows and is displayed at the art gallery on Highway 140 in town. Gary and Reva have since retired and are enjoying the good life in Idle Wheels.

Our members share what we have found enlightening and entertaining

Yue Lei recommends "Picture a Scientist" on Netflix. It will also debut on PBS NOVA on April 14, 2021. Women scientists take viewers on a journey into their experiences in the sciences. Perspectives are shared on how to make science more equitable and diverse.

Jill Rowney enjoyed reading "The Secret Life of Bees" by Sue Monk Kidd. It is a coming of age story and Jill loved the poetic writing and a story filled with warmth and love.

Kathy Delaney read "The Book of Delights" by Ross Gay and reported that it was an excellent read during the pandemic. It is a book of "essayettes" about things that delighted the author each day and many of them are shared. Kathy said it is a great read whether you have a few minutes or a few hours to read.

Sue Overstreet shared a website about books written by women from every country in the world. The website is https://www.theguardian.com/books/2021/mar/08/what-i-learned-from-reading-female-writers-from-every-country-in-the-world

Peggy Shainberg and Anne Dolchanczyk both recommended "The Storied Life of AJ Fickry" by Gabrielle Zevin. It is a book about transformation and second chances. Peggy recommended it to Veronica Gross for her book club in the Bay Area and they all loved it. I think our AAUW Mariposa book group read this as well.

Anne also recommended "Then She Was Gone" by Lisa Jewell. This book deals with a missing 15-year-old, and the changes that happen to her family 10 years later.

Anne recently discovered a blogger who is Chinese American and writes about many different topics. One that Anne enjoyed was an article about the blogger's grandfather who immigrated from China to Savannah, Georgia over 100 years ago. Wonderful old photos are also part of the blog. The website is https://www.chanspekingkitchen.com/

Saralynn Nusbaum recommends "Ice Cold Murders" on PBS Masterpiece. Rocco Schiavone, a detective, is assigned to a small town in the Italian Alps to investigate homicides. The violence is minimal and there are many funny moments. He also has a wonderful dog. The language is Italian and there are subtitles. You can get this on Amazon Prime by subscribing to PBS Masterpiece.

And finally, a recommendation from Dawn Johnson that reads more like a cautionary tale. She advises that we should not be fooled by warm weather that hints of an early spring, causing some people to go out and buy plants and put them into the ground with high hopes for a successful garden. Then the snow arrives, and the plants are crushed, never to arise again. These are the woes of gardening in Mariposa. Dawn, you are not alone!

Thank you so much to all of you who contacted me to share ideas with our group. I know that I have a new list of things to investigate! If there is interest, we will make this a monthly feature in our newsletter. Please let me know what entertains and enlightens you! ## A look at Egyptian literature

-Sue Overstreet

The topic for the March Zoom meeting of the International Study Group was the literature of Egypt in the 20th and 21st centuries. Sue Overstreet selected seven writers who represent different aspects of a rich literary tradition. These writers all dealt with the importance of the Arabic language as a medium of expression, the growth of Egyptian nationalism, and the influence of the modern world. They include poets, playwrights, novelists, and journalists.

Two of the women writers discussed are our contemporaries. Miral al-Tahawy, professor of Arabic culture and literature at Arizona State University is from a Bedouin family in eastern Egypt. She has written a fascinating book about being an immigrant in New York. Adhaf Souief lives both in Cairo and London and has written a book some of you know, "The Map of Love." She is also a well-known journalist.

The study of Egypt continues in April with a presentation about a photographic trip to Cairo and the surrounding area.

Wine Group "meets" for a virtual tasting

-Cindy Harp

After a long hiatus, the wine and food SIG had a virtual wine tasting via Zoom on Sunday, March 14. The only request was that each participant taste a wine/label they had not tasted before and share their impressions with the others.

The four couples in attendance enjoyed snacks and conversation, as well as the wines they introduced. It was fun to catch up with each other's lives. Most of us were in the process of getting our vaccines and are looking forward to being able to gather safely in person soon! Meantime, if you belong to the wine SIG and would be interested in another virtual tasting, please contact SIG leaders Cindy Harp or Carolyn Baker. Stay tuned!

Stella Bain by Anita Shreveport is a story set against the back drop of WWI. It takes us from London to America. Shreveport has created an interesting and somewhat wrenching tale about love and the meaning of memory, set against the haunting background of a war that destroyed an entire generation. We mostly agreed that parts of the story were a bit forced and not really well-written. It was, however, an easy read.

- Bonnie Little stated that Cathy Owens gave her Backpack Project information to give to Kim Monson and Rebecca Swisher.

Tech Trek (Trish Darcy)

- Trish Darcy reported that the new process for selecting the 2021 girls has been challenging. Teachers have made the nominations and are to advise the students. Parents need to submit consents to the camp director in San Diego. There were 18 girls nominated by the five schools: 13 got parental consents, and five did not respond. The students received their applications and had two full weekends to submit them. Trish received ten applications, and she reached out to the three students that did not submit applications and gave them an extension through tonight. She knows of one who plans to take advantage of this extension. Trish will request the final spreadsheet of completed applications from the camp director, and then she will organize documents and make sure score sheets are usable. Trish will send the information to scorers next weekend for review and completion by the following weekend. She will then notify students of the outcome of the scoring. The Tech Trek group has nine days to submit the final names to the camp director.
- An MOU was signed by Barbara Silva, Cindy Harp, Jody Sergienko, and Trish Darcy and sent to California State AAUW. Trish stated that all five girls who were selected last year will be allowed to attend this year, and they are all choosing to participate. She also requested five spaces for the current year, but this has not been approved yet. She has been in contact with potential attendees for this year. Permission slips will be sent to parents, and thereafter, all communications will be handled electronically.

Tech ConnectT: Multimedia Messages (Rebecca Swisher and Kim Monson)

Cindy Harp will put the article into the appropriate format and submit for publication in local news outlets. The Mariposa Gazette has agreed to do an independent article.
- Kim Monson is hopeful that this project can be held on campus next year (e.g., advertise on cam-
